II. Description of the Capitol Region Education Council (CREC) and schools to be served

CREC is the first and largest of Connecticut’s six Regional Educational Services Center (RESC’s) comprising 35 member public school districts in north central Connecticut. CREC was established in 1966 as a grassroots effort of local school districts and organized that year under the provisions of the Connecticut General Statute (C.G.S.), Section 10-66A.-N. The Connecticut State Department of Education is the recognized regulatory State agency.

The CREC Council is governed by publicly elected board of education members appointed by each member school district. The CREC Council appoints an Executive Director to serve as the executive agent of the Council. Pursuant to C.G.S. 10-66c., CREC as a regional educational service center is a body corporate and politic and as such is a public educational authority acting on behalf of the State of Connecticut.

CREC operates sixteen interdistrict magnet schools that educate diverse populations of students from throughout the Hartford region. Three of these schools, Civic Leadership High School (located in Enfield, CT; grades 9 - 12), CREC Academy of Science and Innovation (located in New Britain, CT; grades 6 - 12) and the Metropolitan Learning Center for Global and International Studies (located in Bloomfield, CT; grades 6 - 12), have received grant funding to implement trauma-informed practices in their schools. School staff at all three schools have received foundational training in the impacts of trauma. In addition, clinical staff at all schools are implementing Cognitive Behavioral Intervention for Trauma in Schools (CBITS), an evidence-based clinical intervention for students who have experienced trauma. The RFP seeks proposals from vendors who will build upon the schools’ previous training experiences to further staff expertise in areas such as classroom practice, discipline, and self-care.

III. Nature of Services

The primary mission for schools is to support students in educational achievement. To reach this goal, we know that children must feel safe, supported, and ready to learn. As schools strive to accomplish this for all students—regardless of strengths, needs, and capacities—schools must recognize the influence of the students’ personal experiences on their learning and achievement. Children are exposed to violence and trauma at an alarming rate in the United States. By age sixteen, two-thirds of children in the United States have experienced a potentially traumatic event such as physical or sexual abuse, natural disaster or terrorism, sudden or violent loss of a loved one, refugee and war experiences, serious accident or life-threatening illness, or military family-related stress... Not only are individual children affected by traumatic experiences, but other students, the adults on campus, and their communities can be impacted by interacting or working with a child who has experienced trauma. Thus, as schools maintain their critical focus...
An experienced service provider is sought to support three CREC magnet schools in developing and sustaining trauma-informed school environments. The contracted vendor will conduct needs assessments, and develop and implement professional development and support plans specific to each school. Plans must take into account training that has been previously provided among other factors.

The selected vendor must be available and demonstrate the capacity to begin work effective July 1, 2019. Most services will take place during the school year. Services to be provided by the selected vendor include the following:

- an assessment of each schools’ strengths and needs with respect to becoming trauma-informed school communities;
- development and implementation of professional learning plans for each school, to support the understanding and implementation of trauma-informed practices in classrooms and school-wide;
- development and implementation of school-based support to increase effectiveness and sustainability; and
- on-going assessment of the impact of services provided, including assessment of staff knowledge and changes to teacher practice.

The system of professional learning and support would typically include workshops and teacher coaching, but the review committee will also consider other innovative, effective approaches to accomplish the intended outcome.

The selected provider will be required to collect evaluation data on the perception and effectiveness of their services, and share such data on a regular basis.
